MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Central Intelligence

SUBJECT: Residence for Director of Central Intelligence

1. This memorandum is for information.
2. A good case can be made for providing a headquarters residence for the Director of Central Intelligence. As Chief Intelligence Officer of the Government and intelligence adviser to the President, he must be instantly available on a 24-hour basis. This may require his personal presence in the headquarters building on short notice, or availability by telephone, which must be secure, or by courier. All of these would be enhanced by a building in close proximity to Headquarters. In addition, no matter where the Director dwells, special security measures have to be taken to protect him, to protect classified information, and to protect classified documents. These points are spelled out in detail in the attached memorandum from the Director of Security to the Deputy Director for Support, dated 13 May 1965. Aside from the added protection, the Director of Security estimates that a Government-provided building at headquarters would result in considerable saving of money to the Government. The problem is to obtain authority to construct such a dwelling.

3. The General Counsel made a study in 1960 and concluded that authorizing legislation would be required as well as approval of the funds needed. Since no precedent has been found for construction of a residence for the head of a civilian agency, such legislation might well become controversial in the Congress. If, therefore, it is proposed to seek such authorization, the proposal should be carefully reviewed with the Bureau of the Budget and with members of the CIA Subcommittees in the House and the Senate before any public move is made.

MEMORANDUM FOR: General Counsel
Director of Logistics
Director of Security

SUBJECT : Residence for Admiral Raborn

1. In the course of the briefing by DD/S on 24 April 1965, Admiral Raborn asked whether consideration had been given to providing a residence for the Director. He was advised that this question had been raised in the past with certain Congressmen; however, the proposal had not been favorably received.
2. Admiral Raborn said that he would like to have a talking paper on the possibility of a house being provided for the Director, preferably on the Headquarters premises. He also advised that he would probably like to discuss this matter with Senator Stennis and Congressman Rivers.
3. Presumably the best grounds for proposing a house for the Director would be for reasons of security. It is requested that the addressees draft a talking paper for Admiral Raborn on this subject.
